Holiday House Guests Are Coming, Is Your Internet Ready?

The holidays are right around the corner, bringing family gatherings, online shopping, video calls with loved ones, and plenty of streaming. With more devices connecting to your home Wifi, now is a great time to make sure your network is ready for the extra traffic.

A few simple steps can help keep your Wifi running smoothly. If you notice buffering, slow speeds, or dead spots, it might be time to improve your home Wifi coverage.

Router placement matters! Keeping your router in a good location can allow Wifi to reach more areas of your home. Other devices, like camera systems and printers using Wifi Direct (which lets them connect directly to your phone or computer without your home Wifi), can cause interference when placed too close to your router. Moving these devices at least 10 feet away or disabling the extra Wifi feature may help. Not sure if your router is in the best spot or suspect interference Give us a call. Our team can help determine if relocating would improve your coverage.

If you're having trouble getting a strong Wifi signal in certain areas of your home, we can help! A mesh Wifi unit may be just what you need to extend your coverage and keep you connected where it matters most.

From holiday movie marathons to video calls with family near and far, a reliable connection helps make the season a little less stressful. Need help getting your Wifi holiday-ready? Give us a call! We're here to help you stay connected to what matters most.

Tech Tip of the month

Holiday Season = Scam Season

November and December bring shopping, packages and plenty of emails and texts. Unfortunately, scammers know that too. Fake delivery notices, unbelievable online deals and messages pretending to be from familiar companies are common ways scammers try to get personal or payment information.

Before clicking a link, stop and take a second look. If a message says there's a problem with a package, delivery address or account, don't use the link in the message. Instead, go directly to the company's website or contact the company using information you know is legitimate.

If you accidentally click something you shouldn't have, don't panic. Give our Solution Center a call. We're here to help talk you through what to do next. A little caution can go a long way toward keeping your holidays merry, bright and scam-free.
